AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

A ROAD TO BE CONSTRUCTED TO CAPE FLATTERY.

A 77 Year Old Fiend Who Leased His Wife—Preparations for the Fourth of July at Port Townsend—American War Vessels—Pension Agent Found Dead.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y. June 11.—The jewelry store of W. D. Norton at Gloverville, Alton county, was broke into by burglars some time last night and jewelry to the amount of $16,000 was stolen.

Violated the Labor Law.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—It is said at the treasury department this morning that no action will be taken with regard to the detention and return of the seven Belgian glass blowers who entered the United States in violation of the contract labor law until some disposition is made by Congress of the representative Lodge's resolution bearing upon the subject. The department officers say that the resolution is now in committee with little prospects of its passage by congress and as the Cunard company agreed to return the Belgians without cost to the government no further notice of the case will be taken by the department.

A Veteran Publisher Dead.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Geo. E. Brett, who in 1869 came to this country to establish a branch of the London publishing house of Mr. Dillon & Co., and when he carried on successfully until about a year ago, when failing health compelled him to resign, died in this city this morning of consumption. He was born in Kent, England, in 1829.

PORTLAND, June 11.—Donald Tracy, an ironmoulder, a man about 35 years of age, was arrested to-day on a charge of criminal assault on Minnie Jayden, a young girl about 17 years old. It is claimed that Tracy, who was acquainted with the Jayden family, entered the house in the absence of the father, and overpowering the girl outraged her. The defendant is well known among the working classes, and the impression is that the case is prosecuted to obtain money from Tracy. The case will come to trial in the police court Thursday. Tracy has furnished $300 bail.

A Mysterious Death.

CADIZ, Ohio, June 11.—L. B. Grimes, a well known politician, and successful pension agent, was found lying dead in his office this morning. There were no marks of violence and the case is a mystery which cannot be solved.

He Leased His Wife.

LOWELL, MASS., June 11.—Joseph Defoy and Narcisse Roy were so fiendish that not long ago Defoy proposed to lease his wife to Roy for three years for $100. Shortly afterwards Defoy went to Canada and Roy looked upon the matter as a joke until recently he was arrested charged with assault on Mrs. Defoy. He offered to pay $25 to settle, but Defoy refused. Roy's son paid $100 to hush up the matter. At the trial Roy was discharged, the judge not believing the evidence of the Defoys. Roy is seventy-seven years old.

An Adventurous Life Ended.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., June 11.—John Cook Turner, a noted outlaw, and one of the chiefs of the famous Turner gang which has been among the Cumberland Mountains for many years, was shot on Sunday by Will Turner, his cousin and died to-day.

A Horrible Witness.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 11.—Mrs. John Valentine has been defeated in her suit to recover $11,000 life insurance held by her husband who died a year ago. The defence was that Valentine, who was a commercial traveler had committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. The wife had her husbands body exhumed and head cut off and brought into court where it rested on her counsels desk.

Port Townsend Courthouse.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Bids were opened to-day at the treasury department for the construction of the courthouse at Port Townsend, Wash. Either, Harlan & Matrell, of Seattle, were the lowest bidders, at $75,000.

Road to Cape Flattery.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The committee on military affairs of the Senate, on Saturday, reported adversely the bill providing for a survey for a road from Port Townsend to Cape Flattery, in Washington. It went to the calendar with an unfavorable report.

To be Opened Up.

SEATTLE, June 9.—Articles of incorporation of the Olympic Post Road Co. were filed with Auditor Forrest yesterday by J. Hooper Wheeler, Silas St. John, W. H. White and James H. Wells, who are the trustees of the corporation. The object, as stated in the articles, is the construction and equipment of a toll road from Hood's canal in Jefferson county in a southerly direction to the bench of the mountain, thence along the bench to the place affording the easiest grade to the valley of the Dosewallips; thence up this valley to the iron mines, about eleven miles from the mouth of the river; thence up the right fork of the river to the divide, along the divide about eight miles; thence to the valley at the foot of Mount Constance. The capital stock is $100,000.

American War Vessels.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The proposals to build new vessels provided for by Congress were opened at the navy department this morning. A large number of naval men were interested spectators and manifested considerable surprise at the enormous number of bids received. There were three bidders for the building of armed cruiser No. 2, "3100 tons displacement," the limit for which is $3,000,000. The bids were as follows: Union Iron Works, of San Francisco, according to their own plans $3,000,000; Cramp & Sons, Philadelphia on department plans, $3,150,000, their own plans $2,980,000; the Risdon Iron and Locomotive Works of San Francisco made one bid, that on the department plans $3,[illegible]; on their own plans one bid was read for the building of the protective cruiser No. 6, the limit being $1,800,000. The Union Iron Works of San Francisco propose to build the vessel on the department's plans and specifications for $1,796,000, and on their own plan for $1,760,000 for the practice vessel, the government's limit for which is $960,000. Two bids were received. F. W. Wheeler & Co., of West Bay City, Mich., will build the vessel on department's plan for $245,000, and Samuel L. Moore, Sons & Co., Elizabeth, N. J., on department plans for $250,000. Neither company offered a bid for this vessel on their own plan.

The Deadly Gun.

SACRAMENTO, June 8.—A young colored man named Whittaker and his wife were about to enter a buggy in front of their residence last night to go to a moonlight picnic in the suburbs, the wife put her hand into her husband's coat pocket and, finding a pistol there, took it out. He said he was taking it to a friend, but she replied that neither he nor his friend needed it, and started to take it in the house. Whittaker caught her hand and, in trying to take the weapon away, discharged it. The bullet entered his wife's side, causing her death this morning. The struggle for the pistol was in a spirit of humor and the accident a deplorable one. The parties had been married but one month and were greatly attached to each other.

Patriotic Port Townsend.

PORT TOWNSEND, June 8.—A citizens' meeting was held to-night to arrange for the Fourth of July celebration here. Leading citizens attended, and much enthusiasm was aroused. It was decided to have a big celebration of Independence day and completion of the first twenty miles of the Port Townsend Southern railroad at the same time. A general committee of fifteen was appointed to take the matter in hand and appoint all other committees required. The meeting adjourned with cheers for the committee.

A BLACK CLOUD

Passes over the Village of Channahon, Killing and Injuring the Inhabitants.

JOLIET, Ill., June 11.—A funnel-shaped cloud passed through the village of Channahon at nine o'clock last night, doing immense dammage and killing and injuring, it is understood, quite a number of people. Channahon is a town of about 1000 persons, nine miles south of Joliet, with no railroad or telegraphs. A telephone message says the roaring of the cyclone could be heard four miles away, but the people were too much frightened to extend aid to the sufferers. A large strip of country was devastated. Reports indicate that the list of killed and wounded will be large. Surgeons have been sent from here to relieve their sufferings. From meagre information at hand it seems that most of the damage done by the storm was in the country around Channahon, and that the majority of the casualties occurred outside of the town. Although the place is not far from here there is little hope of getting anything definite from there, owing to the bad condition of the roads. While it is believed that the reports so far received are exaggerated, the belief is prevalent that a great disaster has occurred. At midnight nothing had been heard from the parties who left here for Channahon at ten o'clock.

TO BE SUB PORTS.

Exertions Made to Make Seattle and Port Angeles Independent of Townsend.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Norman R. Smith, of Port Angeles, Washington, is in the city to urge the passage of a bill to make Seattle and Port Angeles sub ports of entry and clearance. Smith says vessels bound for Victoria are obliged to go seventy miles out of their way to clear at Port Townsend, while if Port Angeles were a port of entry it would be in their line for Victoria, which is only seventeen miles across the Sound. The Bill has passed the Senate and has been reported favorably from the House committee on commerce, and Smith will endeavor to have it brought before the House for passage at an early day.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

A Chinese Detective Hunting up a Murderer Who has Been at Large for Four Years.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 11.—A Chinese detective is in this city. His mission is to arrest a Chinaman who four years ago committed murder in China. The details are blood curdling and the most horrible ever known in criminal history in the Celestial empire. The murderers name is Foo Choo, he was enamored with a Chinese maiden named Nankeen Pan Yan. Her father objected to the attentions of Foo Choo and insisted on Nankeen marrying another. Nankeen demurred however, but the parent insisted, and Nankeen became a bride. The ceremony was peformed with all the pomp and ceremony of a well to do Chinese family. Foo Choo stole into their apartments during the night and after binding and gagging his victims he deliberately murdered them by inches. He first cut off the fingers of the brides hands, then her toes, then dismembered her body and finally severed her head from her neck. The groom was treated to a like fate, and then the murderer fled. His crime was not discovered until three days afterward, as when the couple are married in China, they are isolated from every one for that period of time. Search was immediately made for Foo, who was suspected of the crime, but he had already an escape, going from China to Australia. The emperor offered a large reward for his apprehension, and during the past three years the detective now in this city has been hunting him. He has travelled all over the western portion of the United States, and is now making a careful search of New Mexico, as he believes the long hunted for Foo is in this territory, running a laundry, and there is reason to believe that he will be arrested shortly.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT IN QUEBEC.

The Party Sails for England To-morrow—Australian Colonies Decide on the Construction of War Ships and Intercolonial Free Trade.

LONDON June 11.—Rev. John Oakly, D. D., Dean of Manchester is dead.

Fearful Loss of Life and Property.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 11.—Information has reached here of a disastrous fire, accompanied by great loss of life and property, at Ufaleisk and New Jansk, in the Ural Mountain mining district. The magazine, iron works, four schoolhouses, three churches and a thousand dwelling-houses were destroyed. Forty persons lost their lives, and 8000 were rendered homeless.

The Royal Party.

QUEBEC, June 11.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught returned to Quebec from Cascapedia fishing grounds to-day, and will be presented with the address at Parliament to-morrow.

O'Brien Married.

LONDON, June 11.—To-day Wm. O'Brien, member of Parliament for Cork, and Mlle. Raffaelovitch, daughter of the distinguished Parisian banker, were married by Archbishop Croke. The ceremony was witnessed by Parnell and many other members of the Irish national party. John Dillon acted as groomsman. An immense crowd gathered about Brompton Oratory, where the marriage was celebrated.

A Steamer's Hurts.

LIVERPOOL, June 11.—Examination shows the condition of the Anchor line steamer City of Rome, now docked for repairs at Birkenhead, to be more serious than at first believed, and the case will require at least a week's work to repair a twenty-foot hole found in the steamer's forehold. Experts declare that to the prompt closing of the sliding bulkheads door was due the preservation of the City of Rome from sinking. An examination of the vessel shows her prow to have been torn away twenty feet from the keel, the damage extending to the latter for some distance.

Daniel Ill.

LONDON, June 11.—It is announced that Michael Davitt is seriously ill.

Honor to Stanley.

EDINBURGH, June 11.—To-day Lord Provost and the town council presented Henry M. Stanley with the freedom of the city of Edinburgh. The ceremony was witnessed by a throng of people who greeted the African with marked enthusiasm.

Australian Matters.

LONDON, June 10—The colonial governments of Australia have all passed necessary acts providing funds for the construction by the British government of several ships of war to be devoted exclusively to the defense of the Australian colonies. It is also proposed to establish inter-colonial free trade throughout Australia, whether the Imperial federation as advocated by Lord Rosebery comes or not. All signs point to the certainty of an Australian union that will present on the opposite side of the world a copy of the United States of America. The Australians are much dissatisfied with the course of the British government in permitting other European nations to gain a foothold in Polynesia, and with a fleet at their command, their remonstrances may take a vigorous form.

Cardinal Manning's Jubilee.

LONDON, June 9.—With elaborate ceremonies and in the presence of a number of foreign diplomats and other persons of prominence, Cardinal Manning celebrated his silver jubilee, the 25th anniversary of his elevation to the dignity of archbishop in the Roman Catholic church. The Earl of Ripon presented an illuminated address of congratulation, to which the cardinal responded feelingly, announcing that quite a sum of money had been subscribed in honor of the occasion towards the debt of the cardinal. Cardinal Manning became archbishop of Westminster upon the death of Cardinal Wiseman.

How Germany Disarms.

BERLIN, June 9.—The minister of war has officially announced that bills will shortly be introduced in the Reichstag for the construction of strategical railways and for training reserves in the use of the new rifle, also for an appropriation for further equipment of the army. It is also understood that an increase of 40,000 more men will be made to the standing army, than the present bill provides for.

Revolt in Siberia.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 9.—Advices from Siberia state that there have been revolts in the gold mines belonging to the Russian millionaires, Basilewskia and Bartaschoff. The miners, who were goaded to rebellion by starvation wages and maltreatment, killed two superintendents and demolished a large number of buildings. A troop of Cossack were beaten off, and now two regiments have been ordered to the scene.

British Affairs.

LONDON, June 9.—In the commons to-day Vincent called the attention of the House to the fact that the House of Representatives at Washington City had passed a bill for enhanced prohibitory duties on cutlery, tin plate, and other articles of British export. He asked whether the English government, having regard to the treaty [illegible] which the Senate's approval must have on Sheffield, the Midlands, South Wales and Belfast, would adhere to their view that the free import system of the United Kingdom precluded restrictions to the British minister at Washington City to represent to the United States the great injury that such legislation would do to the industry of a friendly power, which in 1889 gave free markets to £96,000,000 worth of American competing goods. Secretary Ferguson said the government had not been informed of any important alterations in the tariff bill. Dillon spoke of the danger to the public peace from the violent and unconstitutional action of the magistrates and police of Cashel Tipperary at the recent meetings. Gladstone supported Dillon's motion to adjourn. Balfour said the force was sent to Tipperary to preserve order. If anything serious happened, the blame would rest with those who defied the government proclamations. Dillon's motion to adjourn was lost.

Mr. Tully, editor of the Rescousseau Herald, has been convicted under the Crimes Act of publishing an article denouncing land grabbers, and has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment without hard labor.

The cabinet by a majority has decided to shelve the Irish land bill. The minority, headed by Balfour, were in favor of sacrificing some other measure, but yielded to the inevitable.

THE FRENCH PRESS

Discuss the Ontario Elections—Think it is All Right.

QUEBEC, June 6.—Le Electeur is jubilant over the Ontario election. It has the French and English standards crossed in a most friendly way with the inscription underneath: "Hurrah for Mowat." It adds that yesterday's proceedings in Ontario were but the prelude of the seventeenth of June in Quebec. "Thanks, generous Liberal girls and Reformers, for the noble example you have just given. Your far-reaching action in the patriotism of the inhabitants of the Province of Quebec has found its way to our hearts and stirs in us what there is of generous sentiments."

Le Canadienne, Conservative, devotes about seven lines to the Ontario elections and says: "We congratulate the Province and Canada at large on the result."

It is a rather remarkable fact that in nearly every constituency in which Dalton McCarthy spoke the Government was easily sustained.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Items of Sporting Matters Here and Elsewhere.

The first match of the season between the Vancouver and Victoria clubs will take place at Beacon Hill on Saturday next, commencing about 10.30 a.m. The Vancouverites leave on Friday and will no doubt be accompanied by their numerous friends. The following is the selected eleven. Rev. H. P. Clinton, captain, and Messrs. C. Nelson, Coleman, Williams, Walton, Creery, Griffiths, Chaldecott, Fripp, Campbell and McKay; reserves, M. B. Wilkinson and C. Barker; umpire, J. Boultbee, Esq. The team, it is said, is not the strongest one that ought to be sent.

BASEBALL.

The rain put a kind of damper on the baseball enthusiasts to-day who have been looking forward to the Portland-Tacoma match, but the clubs decided that if the grounds were sufficiently dry they would commence the game at four o'clock.

Drowning of Forty-two Children.

Details have now reached Roslau of the accident by which forty-two children were drowned in the Oder, near Thurze. A number of church-goers, including about forty young girls belonging to the villages of Budalek, Sledlisk, Ruda and Thurze, were returning home from Slawikau, where they had been to receive instructions for their first communion. When they arrived at the bank of the river to be conveyed to the opposite side the ferryman, instead of using the weight-carrying flat ferry, contented himself with the ordinary ferry boat, into which the children all crowded together so that the gunwale of the boat, which should have been thirty five centimetres out of the water, was depressed to the water's level. Nevertheless, the boat, with its living freight, crossed to within a few yards of the opposite shore, when it suddenly capsized and sank, carrying most of the children in it to the bottom. A single shriek of horror issued from the lips of the spectators on the bank from which the boat started. They saw for a second the look of terror on the children's faces; they heard their heart-rending cries; but could do nothing save watch one little head after another disappear beneath the water.—Pall Mall Gazette.

MR. CHARLES WILSON.

THE INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE ON THE STUMP.

He Speaks a Little on a Great Many Things —An Excellent Speech but too Colorless—Then Gets on the Platform and Talks Under Difficulties.

The meeting called by Mr. Chas. Wilson, the Independent Government candidate in the Victoria Theatre last evening was well attended. So far as attendance was concerned it was a much greater success than the first effort of the Independent Government party. In fact, after the meeting had been opened half an hour seating capacity was fairly well utilized. On motion of Mr. Blackett, seconded by Mr. W. Brown, ex-Mayor Chas. E. Redfern, Esq., was appointed chairman of the meeting. On the platform with Mr. Wilson were Messrs. Percy Brown, Montague Leet, Wm. Brown, Walter Anderson and Mr. Blackett.

Mr. Wilson on coming forward met with generous applause and at once launched into the subject matter of the elections and his candidature, prefacing his remarks with a promise to give his views briefly and clearly. He said that the public had before them nine candidates, and was in much the same position as the King of France, who once had to listen to two very learned arguments for and against a question, and who had said it required much learning and judgment to decide what to do; he did not think, however, that it would require an extraordinary discernment on the part of the electors to understand who were the best candidates to vote for. He came before them as an independent supporter of the Government and defined the same by stating that no single question of policy had yet been defined by either the Government or Opposition candidates, but it was a question of men. When a principle was advanced he would openly and fairly say whether he supported it or not, but as there was nothing definite before the electors in the way of a policy on either side, he could not offer himself to their suffrages as an Independent; if the people saw fit to return him he would serve them faithfully; if not elected he would not grieve. Had he been a member of the late legislature, he said, he would not have voted for the school tax which had loaded Victoria with an annual and unfair expenditure of some $80,000. (Applause.) Neither would he have supported the 5 per cent. mining royalty. Were he a member of the house he would support good measures, but would not lavishly obey the Government. This would be independent support. No matter which side of the house a good measure emanated from he would, if elected, support it. In reference to his own ideas the speaker declared that his policy would be one of advancement and good to the Province. Reverting to the measure passed last year in the house for the establishment of a university, but no question as to its site had been mentioned. He for one would support a measure to make Victoria that site, as the capital city would be the proper place for it. He also thought that the lands of the Indian reserve should revert to the city of Victoria as very little in proportion to other parts of the Province was granted to this city out of the Provincial purse, except those sums for the maintenance of the departments, and she deserved more, being a great contributor to the treasury of the Province. Touching the building of railways he reverted to the fact that the V. S. & N. W. R. R. had been granted a charter but no Provincial aid had as yet been granted. He for one was in favor of granting Provincial aid to that road, and more especially so as the city had endorsed the road by bonusing it. He believed that if the city was made the terminus of the road it would result in being of great benefit to the city, and would also result in Victoria being ultimately the terminus of the C. P. R. It had been said the scheme was not possible as the stretch of water, fifteen miles, which had to be passed would in the winter be rough, but no great undertaking could be carried on without trouble, but these troubles could be successfully combatted. He contrasted the excellent railway roads of the United States with those of this Province. In the United States no restrictions or obstacles were placed in the way of capitalists who wished to build a road and the vast strides taken there in the march of progress showed that the law was a good one. Even if the idea was an American one, he for one was in favor of adopting it, as it was bad policy to hedge about the law pertaining to railway construction with a lot of useless red tape. The establishment of a lien law was spoken on and he clearly showed that some measure was necessary to protect certain classes, but those who were to be aided by it should state what they wanted and if it did nothing hurtful to the public, then it should be passed. The law quoted as the best was the Oregon lien law, and if the working man wanted it, why let them have it by all means. The speaker also thought that all Government works should be given out by contract, as it then gave everybody a chance to bid, and left no possible chance for jobbery. In reference to the Chinese question, he could say that his votes on that while he was in the House would show how he felt in that matter. When he represented Cariboo he had been elected on an anti-Chinese platform, and he was willing to promise again to do all in his power to force them out of the labor markets of the province. Dealing with his qualifications to represent the district, he spoke of the fact that it had been stated he was disqualified by reason of his name being on two voters' lists. He contended this was not the reason he was opposed by the law did not specify one list, but stated some list. He enjoined those who wished to vote for him not to withhold a vote by reason of what had been said of the two lists, as he was quite qualified. True, he could not vote for himself, that was the only bar in his way. As a matter of fact, though, he had written to the proper officer at Cariboo asking that his name be taken off the voters' list there, and had in the letter fully explained his reasons for so doing. The letter, perhaps, was never delivered, but it had been written; but even if it had not he would still be eligible as a candidate. He was glad too see that the canvass thus far had not been marked by personalities, and it was a healthy sign that it was not. It had, however been reported that he had run away from the contest last week, but he had not, he had only done his professional duty by a client who had retained him last July to act for him at the Kamloops court. Had he not been true to that trust he would not be fit to represent the electors. Referring to the principles of Henry George and the single tax, he did not think it had as yet become a factor in the coming election, although he felt that it was an object which demanded attention. True, there had been many extracts taken from the works of Henry George and published, but these extracts were not a true indication of the work at all, and were not perhaps fitting to be judged as the tone of the one of the whole book. It was easy enough to make extracts here and there from any book, and thus show a man to be a plunderer, but he felt satisfied that Henry George was not that. The subject was one that required great study, and from a short inspection of the works of Henry George, the speaker did not think he was a plunderer. He read a short extract from "Progress and Poverty," and said that thoughts such as were there given could not for one moment be the ideas of a plunderer, but were rather those of a man who desired to regenerate the human race, and were ideas that should be respected and admired by every right thinking man. He had said it was no part of his idea to attack either Opposition or Government, but he thought he might safely point out this: The electors were asked to vote for one particular ticket, but without any discourtesy, he thought he might ask them not to vote for any ticket till that ticket represented some particular principle. There were discordant elements in both and especially in the Government ticket. (Applause.) He did not believe that ticket could hold together. He had been told over and over again during his canvass by Government supporters that they were not going to support that ticket (of course not). It was no use to talk a happy family could never be made out of the elements in that combination (laughter). Indeed the first night that the candidates appeared on the public platform, one of them said he would support Government measures only when he considered them proper. That was the kind of party men on the Government ticket. And there were certainly two on the Government side who, like himself, were Independent Government supporters. He thought it was time we had some independent politics, till at least some great principle was at stake. It was time to get rid of this idea of turning Mr. X. out simply because we thought Mr. Z. would do a little better in. Concluding, he urged electors to take into consideration his record in the House for the four years he was there. He could assure his friends that they were fighting no losing battle. People had at last come to the conclusion that they had had enough of extreme partyism. He believed he would be returned. Mr. Wilson concluded amid loud applause.

Mr. Davies ascended the platform, and asked Mr. Wilson what his ideas were of the Redistribution Bill.

Mr. Wilson said he thought that was a question no candidate in Victoria should have been asked to answer. He thought if any district on Vancouver Island could complain, that it was Victoria City, where the population had so very largely increased. The country districts were constantly changing, while Victoria continued growing steadily larger and in importance. As he said, if any district on Vancouver Island had a right to complain, it was Victoria.

Mr. West, on coming forward, said he had been requested to ask Mr. Wilson if he was prepared to go so far as to alienate the Government lands to speculators, or to subject them to such taxation that holding them for speculative purposes would be impossible.

Mr. Wilson said this was opening the old question, and in the present state of affairs it would be impossible to do so, as all customs dues and excise charges would have to be done away with. The whole country would have to undergo a radical change before this could be brought about.

Mr. West, apologizing for taking up the time of the meeting, said it would be very possible to introduce locally the single tax without jeopardizing the revenue. He illustrated that a lot, say worth $500, would be taxed $10 per year, no matter how cheap or how elaborate a house was erected on it, and a lot alongside of it, which though vacant, would be taxed equally with an occupied one. He felt sure that the single tax question would ere long be a factor to be considered by all politicians, and he hoped that ere long no candidate would ever come before them and say that he did not understand single tax. For his part he did not think it made the slightest difference which party was in power as regarded the working man, but of the two parties the Government were rather the worse. He was opposed to all monopolies, and would like to see Mr. Wilson come out plainly and say that he, too, was opposed to monopolies. The speaker thought that the monopolies of lawyers and doctors in the Province was a bad feature for the good of the people, and he hoped that both Mr. Wilson and Dr. Milne, if they had the good of the public at heart, would both declare in favor of doing away with the monopolies. Mr. West then spoke to some length on the single tax question, and ended his remarks by stating that of all the candidates, he thought Mr. Wilson the best one, as he was honest, and although a lawyer, was one who had a reputation for honesty. He, Mr. West had not yet promised to vote for him, but he would now so promise, as Mr. Wilson was the only honest lawyer he had ever known. (Long and loud laughter.)

Hon. Mr. Davie being called for, ascended the platform amid applause, mingled with calls of "chinaman," etc. He said he ascended the platform under a cloud, as the last speaker had said all lawyers were rogues.

Mr. West—I said nothing of the kind. (Laughter and applause.)

Hon. Mr. Davie, dropping the questions raised by Mr. West, proceeded to say that it appeared that the object of Mr. Wilson calling this meeting had been to form an opinion on every subject. He was asked his opinion of the Redistribution question, and he had been without giving any answer. Perhaps he considered that that was what politicians should do. (Hisses and noisy interruptions.) Mr. Chairman having asked for a fair hearing for Mr. Davie, he proceeded to say that of all the candidates who had expressed their opinion on the single tax, one only was honest, and that was Capt. Irving, who said he knew nothing about it. (More hisses.) Quiet being restored, he denied a charge made at the Opposition meeting, that he had suppressed the name of an applicant to be placed on the voters' list. He did not know Mr. Dutton, whose name it was said he had received for the purpose of placing it on the voters' list, and because Mr. Dutton had expressed hostility to him (Mr. Davie) afterwards, he had suppressed it. It was false, a lie. (Hisses and interruptions, and cries of Chinaman.) Messrs. Beaven and Grant had come forward and advocated——

The rest of what Mr. Davie said was never heard. Someone near the reporters made an interruption, and Mr. Davie asked the reporters to mind their own business, amid loud laughter. He proceeded with attacks on the Opposition candidates, most of which was inaudible on account of calls of "Chinaman" and "School Tax." He asked all to attend the meeting to-morrow night and descending the platform, amid calls of "Good night, Davie."

Mr. Wilson said in reply to Mr. Davie's accusation that he was a trimmer and said nothing, that the audience had not learned much by what Mr. Davie had said. Mr. Davie had not enunciated any new thing, or told him, Mr. Wilson, what he should do, but had entered into a tirade of abuse against Mr. Grant, when it would have been better taste to have taken a meeting of Mr. Grant's to have thus spoken. Criticising Mr. Davie's acts Mr. Wilson said that two measures had been introduced by him, which were of no use. One, the Small Debts Act, which had not been a success at all, and the other, an act which a bench of five judges could make nothing of.

There being no more opinions to offer, the meeting adjourned with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

CHAPTER VIII.

YES, JUST LIKE JUPITER.

Since that memorable meeting in honor of Michael Ardan, Hon. Mr. J. T. Maston had talked and thought of nothing else but the "changing of the axis of the earth." He had studied the subject as much as possible and found out all the facts and figures about it. As the problem had been solved by this eminent calculator a new axis was going to take the place of the old one upon which the earth was now turning, and the world would otherwise remain the same. In the scheme it would be possible for the climate around the North Pole to become exactly the same as that of Trosbejn, in Norway, in the spring. Naturally, then, the large amount of ice would melt under the ardent sun. At the same time the climates would be distributed over our sphere like those now on the surface of Jupiter. In other words, the new-formed society of Barbicane was going to change every thing at present on the surface of the earth. And the creation of this new axis was possible, just as soon as the platform of which Archimedes had dreamed and the lever imagined by J. T. Maston were at the disposal of these courageous engineers. And as they had decided to make a secret of their invention until a future time, people could not do any thing else but make their own figures. This was what all the papers did, calling on the most scientific persons and learning as well something from the most ignorant persons. If there really were persons living on the surface of Jupiter they had a good many advantages over those on the earth, advantages which had all been narrated and explained in the meeting which was held before the trip to the moon. All these advantages would come to the people living on the earth if Barbicane & Co. could accomplish what they intended to do. Twenty-four hours would then always separate two moons from each other. Twilight and dawn would always be as they are now. But the most curious thing of all would be the absence of the different seasons of the year. Now there were summer, winter, fall and spring. The people living on Jupiter did not know these seasons at all. After this experiment people living on this globe would not know them either. As soon as the new axis would be in smooth working order there would be no more ice regions, nor torrid zones, but the whole world would have an even, temperate climate.

What, after all, is the torrid zone? It is a part of the surface in which the people can see the sun twice yearly at its zenith, and the temperate zone but a part where the sun never goes to the zenith, and the icy region but a part of the world which the sun forgets entirely for a long time, and around the North Pole this extends for six months. It is simply the position of the sun which makes a country exceedingly hot or cold. Well, these things would not appear any longer on the surface of the world. The sun would be always over the equator; it would go down every twelve hours just as regular as before. "And among the advantages of the new method," said the friends of President Barbicane, "were these, that each person could choose a climate which was best for himself and his health; no more rheumatism, no more colds, no more grip; the variations of extreme heat would not be known any more." In short, Barbicane & Co. were going to change fixtures which had existed ever since the world was in existence. Certainly the observer would lose a few stars and things which he perhaps liked to look at now, and the poet would not have any longer his dreamy nights, etc., but what a great advantage would it be for the world at large. "And," said certain journals, "the products of the ground can be regulated so that agriculturists can give to each sort of plant life the temperature which suits it most." Other newspapers asked: "Will we no more have rain, or snow, or hail—things upon which a great deal of [illegible] will be more rare than they have been, as the temperature will be more even. Yes, taken all in all, it will be a great advantage to humanity. It will be the real millennium of the earthly globe. And Barbicane & Co. will have done a service to mankind which but for them would have remained an impossibility." "Yes," said Michael Ardan, "our hemisphere, the surface of which is always either too cold or too warm, will no longer be the place for colds and rheumatism, etc." A New York paper of December 27 printed the following article: "Honor to President Barbicane! His associates and himself will not only annex a new province to our American continent, and thereby enlarge the already large possessions of the United States, but they will make the whole world more productive and inhabitable. It will be possible then to put seed in the ground as soon as the crop had grown up and been taken out; there would be no more time lost during the winter. And the coal mines also would make the country richer than the value of its entire present realty. Barbicane & Co. will change the whole world and put it in better condition. Thanks, then, to the people who have done this greatest of benefits to humanity."

CHAPTER IX.

IN WHICH APPEARS THE FRENCH GENTLEMAN TO WHOM WE REFERRED AT THE BEGINNING OF THIS TRUTHFUL STORY.

Such, then, were to be the profits due to the changes which were to be wrought by President Barbicane. The earth would continue to revolve and the course of the year would not be much altered. As the changes would concern the whole world it was natural that they became of interest to all. In regard to the new axis which was going to be used, that was the secret which neither President Barbicane nor Captain Nicholl nor J. T. Maston seemed to be willing to give to the public. Were they to reveal it before or would none know of it until after the change had taken place? A degree of uncertainty began to fill the American mind. Criticisms very natural and to be expected were made in the papers. By what mechanical means was this project to be carried out which would bring about this change? It would necessarily demand a terrible power. One of the greatest papers at that time commented in the following article: "If the earth was not turning on its axis, perhaps a very feeble shock would be sufficient to give it such a movement as might be chosen, but otherwise it would be very difficult if not impossible to deviate it a fixed amount." Nothing seemed more correct after having discussed the effort which the engineers of the N. P. P. A. were to make. Discussion took on the interesting turn as to whether this result would be reached insensibly or suddenly. And if the latter, would not terrible accidents happen at the moment when the change took place? This troubled scientific people as well as ignorant people. It was not agreeable to know that a blow was to be struck and not know precisely what the after effects were to be.

It seemed as if the promoters of this undertaking had not fully considered the consequences—that they would be so very dangerous to the earth, and that it would not do as much good as first thought. The European delegates, more than ever angry at the loss which they had suffered, resolved to make the most of this question and to excite the public as much as possible upon it so as to turn feeling against the members of the gun club.

It will not be forgotten that France had absolutely nothing to do with these delegates, as it had no intentions of buying the Arctic region. However, a Frenchman had come to Baltimore, and for his own personal benefit and information had watched with great interest the proceedings of the gun club. He was an engineer, not more than thirty-five years old. He had been first in the polytechnic school, and came out of it with the highest honors. He was without doubt a skillful engineer, but more than thirty-five years old. He had been first in the polytechnic school, and came out of it with the highest honors. He was without doubt a skillful engineer, but

J. T. Maston. This engineer was a very intelligent young man, very original, always pleasant and with most amiable manners. He always spoke very frankly and used plain language, no matter whether he was speaking in earnest or in fun. He even went so far as to use slangy expressions when they served his purpose. He could sit for hours at his table and figure and calculate, making his figures and calculations as fast as he could write with a pen. His greatest pleasure, next to these difficult mathematical efforts, was in "whist," which he played apparently very indifferently, not forgetting to figure out all his chances. His name was Alcide Pierdoux, but he generally signed it A. Pierd, and sometimes only A. Pie. He was very tall. His friends remarked that his height measured about the five millionth part of the quarter of the meridian, and they were not much mistaken. He had a small head, at least it looked so on his broad shoulders, but with a most lively expression on his face, and his blue eyes behind his eye-glasses twinkled merrily. This was characteristic of him, for he had one of those faces which appear merry, even when they are in sober earnest. He was at once the best scholar in his class and the best tempered. But even if his head did seem a little small on his [illegible] mathematician, as all his ancestors had been, but he did not study mathematics to use them in his profession, for which he never had any taste, as he disliked trade. No, he studied mathematics for themselves alone, simply to find them out more and more where there was so much unknown to man. Let us also remark that Alcide Pierdoux was a bachelor. He was as yet single, or as he would express it, equal to one (=1), although his greatest wish was to get married. His friends all thought that he would marry a very charming girl, gay and spiritualistic. But, unhappily for him, the girl's father said that he was too smart and that he would talk to his daughter in language which she would not be able to understand. How modest and simple this father was, indeed. And for this reason the young engineer decided to place between himself and his country the broad ocean. He asked permission to go abroad for a year and obtained it. He thought that he could not make any better use of his time than to go to Baltimore and note the actions of the N. P. P. A. And this is how he came to be at this time in the United States. However, since he got to Baltimore he had cared little apparently for the great undertaking of Barbicane & Co. Whether the earth would have a change of the axis or not, what did it matter to him? He only wanted to know, and his calculations at the highest point to find out, by what means they were to move the earth. He thought again and again how they would do it and had several plans in his head and dismissed them only to consider the matter afresh. He concluded that they wanted probably to substitute a new axis, but he did not clearly see where their point of operations was to be. Then again he would say: "There is the daily movement. It is impossible to suppress it; how they will do it is a perfect conundrum to me." He had no idea what the plans of Barbicane and Maston were. It is to be regretted very much that their intentions were not known to him, as he would have been able to figure out the formulæ in a very short time. And so it came about that on this 29th of December Alcide Pierdoux was walking with his hand at his brow, pondering about the streets of Baltimore.

DISHONEST OR IGNORANT.

Mr. CHAS. WILSON, congratulating his hearers last night on the absence of personalities in this campaign, supplemented his remarks to the effect that men in their assent to or dissent from legislative measures were invariably honest, and that consequently in discussing their records they were entitled to fair and courteous treatment.

Somehow we cannot but think that Mr. WILSON's assertion is a little too sweeping. On questions of national policy, complex, and admitting of much being said pro and con, we may readily take for granted that the actions of men are shaped largely by their convictions. Such men if they make mistakes are entitled to the charity and commiseration of their fellow citizens. They are entitled to a respectful hearing, and if having found themselves in error they express contrition, they are entitled to confidence. In Provincial matters, however, the case is different. Local questions are almost invariably capable of correct solution. The man, it may be safely assumed, who supports a bad local measure is either dishonest or ignorant. Were the men honest who voted for the school tax, or were they ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? Were the men who defeated for years the measure for prohibiting the employment of Chinese under ground honest or ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? Were the men who endorsed the Royalty Act honest or ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? Were the men who voted for the Mineral Act honest or ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? Were the men who purchased obsolete machinery for well-boring honest or ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? Were the men who donated $1,500 of the public funds for the indigent rich in Nicola honest or ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? And finally, are the men who garble HENRY GEORGE for the purpose of making political capital against their opponents honest or ignorant, and if the latter might they not have learned better? Here are enumerated eight propositions of public policy, all local, and so simple in their nature as to be easily grasped by the ordinary intellect, and yet according to Mr. WILSON's dictum, we must accept the men who endorsed them as having done so conscientiously. We dissent from a proposition so manifestly absurd, and we submit as a proposition which will stand the test of argument, that these men were dishonest, that is, untrue to their convictions, or else they were woefully ignorant. Now, with reference to purely local questions, the full understanding of mental grasp, are such men entitled to courtesy or confidence? If they were dishonest, they forfeit the respect due to honest difference of opinion. If they erred through ignorance, their candidature is an insult to the common sense of the electorate. It seems to us that Mr. WILSON is altogether too charitable. If men are dishonest, the language of condemnation can hardly be made too strong. If men, who, from adventitious causes or the caprice of their fellows, happen to find themselves in high places, are ignorant, are they not legitimate subjects for satirizing, and do they not, whether they be dishonest or ignorant, forfeit the confidence of the people? We shall hail with pleasure the arrival of Thursday night. We are tired of this endless iteration of political records which circumstantially considered would, in a court of law, puzzle the bench to decide which was uppermost, dishonesty or ignorance. We repeat that we are tired of dealing with a subject which, considered impartially, has a tendency to supplant optimism with pronounced pessimism. Political records are sad things to contemplate. It is to be regretted that the study of such is a function of journalism.

MR. CHARLES WILSON WHEN REPRESENTING CARIBOO FOUR YEARS AGO.

The divergence between Mr. CHAS. WILSON, M. P. P. for Cariboo from 1882 to 1886, and the same gentleman when a candidate for the suffrages of the electors of Victoria in 1890 is most marked. When he was in the Legislature he supported all the class legislation of that period, and the alienation of large tracts of lands to corporations and speculators. When charges were made against the Government of acting in direct violation of the statute, Mr. WILSON was one of the first to come to their defence and whitewash them. Yet the reason he gave the electors at the theatre for his candidature, although he did not receive the nomination for the Government ticket, was that the Liberal Conservative Association, of which he is a member, adopted a constitution and disregarded its provisions. He therefore contended that men who made a constitution for their own guidance and disregarded its provisions, were unfitted to make laws. This is just the opposite of the view taken by Mr. WILSON when he sustained the Government in the Legislature four years ago, when it proved that they had broken the law. Mr. WILSON says he is an independent supporter of the Government, whatever that may be. He was appointed by the DAVIE Government as one of the commission to consolidate the statutes. The papers placed before the House last Session show that the Commissioners made a claim for twelve thousand dollars for that work, which the Government declined to pay. If Mr. WILSON is elected and the Government pay the claim, on which side of the fence is Mr. WILSON likely to land?

The statutes of 1882 contain a Bill authorising the admission of CHARLES WILSON, of Barkerville, Cariboo, as a barrister and solicitor of British Columbia. This act was passed during the administration of the WALKEM-BEAVEN Government. In 1884 during the SMITHE administration, Mr. C. C. MCKENZIE applied also for admission as a barrister by Private Bill. When it came up for a second reading Mr. THEODORE DAVIE moved the "six months hoist," which was carried on the following division: Yeas—SMITHE, DAVIE, A. E. B., ALLEN, WILSON, ORR, T. DAVIE, POOLEY, ROBSON, DRAKE, MARTIN, DUNSMUIR and MCTAVISH—12. Nays—SEMLIN, BEAVEN, DUCK, JOHN, RAYBOLD, GALBRAITH, GRANT, COWAN, HELGESEN—10. If Mr. WILSON had voted against the six months' hoist and had granted to Mr. MCKENZIE the same right which a previous Legislature had conferred upon him, the division would have been a tie, and the Speaker, Mr. MARA, in accordance with constitutional practice in such cases, would have voted to allow the Bill to be proceeded with, and Mr. MCKENZIE, like Mr. WILSON, would have been no doubt to-day also a member of the bar.

The electors of Victoria should weigh well Mr. CHARLES WILSON's record as a representative for four years. Cariboo rejected him when he sought re-election. We take it the Province wants to-day men who have not got any large monetary claim against the Government as their representatives.

IS IT A CASE OF THE "INS" AND THE "OUTS."

It has been said that we have no politics which involve vital issues. It is a case we are told of the "ins" and the "outs." If so, the more the pity. "Ins" and "outs" who have no policy, who do not clash over something vital are at the best but a venal gang. But the fact of the matter is, it is not a case of the "ins" and the "outs." Both have a policy. With the "ins" it is a policy of spoliation and the centralization of power. With the "outs" it is a policy radically antithetic. The "ins," with respect to educational matters, have stripped school trustees of every vestige of power, they have foisted an unjust tax on cities for educational purposes, they have squandered the public lands and between their ignorance and lust for power they have arrayed the Mainland against the Island in what promises to be a long and bitter struggle. From measures of this description we extract a policy, and what is it, as we have just said, but the policy of spoliation and of the centralization of power. The "outs," even if they possessed no inherent virtues worth mentioning, are forced into opposition. The "ins," in pursuing the course they have, have furnished the "outs" with political ammunition. The "ins" taunt the "outs" with having no policy. They forget that their policy, only discoverable as it is by a close study of their acts, furnishes the "outs" with a policy, and the very best kind of a policy at that. Nevertheless, we are told that it is all a battle between the "ins" and the "outs," a mere tempest in a tea pot. Well, admitting that it is a tempest in a tea pot, as compared with Dominion policy it is, nevertheless, none the less vital as a question of Provincial policy. Proportionate to the interests at stake these tempests in a tea pot have their value. The policy of the Provincial Government is as important in its way as the policy of the Dominion Government to the whole of Canada. Provincial policy should be broader. Provincial elections might properly embody questions relating to the election of M.Ps. Reciprocity and Free Trade are vitally important questions to this Province, and as go our local elections so should go our Dominion elections. Our representatives at Ottawa, knowing that the complexion of the local house is colored by questions of Dominion policy could not afford to disregard its implied mandates, and inferentially, the Dominion Government itself would be affected. The Local Government should have an external as well as an internal policy. It cannot expect to accomplish much of real benefit to the province so long as it comports itself as a mere colonial dependency.

LABOR VS. CAPITAL.

Our morning contemporary has some quite new ideas of the relations of labor to capital. It assumes that labor is under obligations to capital, whereas, nothing is more certain than that both are inseparable from each other. Capital is inert without labor. Put a million of dollars into a factory or a steamboat, and yet without labor these are worthless except as examples of human handiwork. The Colonist has many thousands of dollars in a building and a newspaper plant. What would be the effect if its employees refused to work? Its capital stock would represent as inert a mass as the Egyptian pyramids. It is sheer folly, then, for the Colonist to assert that because certain Government candidates are large employers of labor, they are the friends of labor, or that labor is under obligations to these men. At the best the relations of capital to labor and vice versa are those of mutual interdependence. They are the logical complements of each other. The capitalist does not put his money into an enterprise that he may give employment to labor. He puts money into an enterprise that he may make more money, the employment of labor entering into his calculations only as furnishing the motive power, the same as electricity furnishes the motive power for our street railway. The Colonist might urge with equal force that Mr. HIGGINS is the especial friend of electricity, because he employs it to give his street railway availability. The fact of the matter is Mr. HIGGINS' employees stand in the same relation to him as does the dynamo which supplies the force that moves his cars. Mr. HIGGINS is a friend to his dynamo and his employees to the extent that he can make them useful to him, and no more. He is not running a street railway for the sake of giving men employment. When he can find a cheaper motive power than electricity he will discard it. Should some genius succeed in inventing an automatic street car conductor which can collect fares at a nominal cost, he will discharge the handsome young men who now officiate in that capacity. Labor is under no obligations to capital for giving them employment. They want to recollect that capital brought the Chinese to this country; that capital is opposed to the per capita tax, and that the Colonist has never yet declared its attitude on the Chinese question.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The result of the general elections for the Ontario Legislature has been the return of Mr. MOWAT and his supporters in unusual force. That in returning Mr. MOWAT to power the people of Ontario have acted in their own best interests, we believe. The long administrative career of the MOWAT regime has been marked by an efficiency, an economy, and a freedom from scandal which give it a position unfortunately unique in Canadian politics.—Winnipeg Tribune. If freedom from scandal is any recommendation, how very far short is the Government of British Columbia.

That the entire Opposition ticket will be elected in Victoria is more than possible—it is very probable. All the Government party concede two to the Opposition, while some are honest enough to admit that in their opinion three will be elected. [illegible] turned and that too by very decisive majorities. Mr. TURNER is the only Government candidate who will poll a respectable vote, and he will be beaten by at least one hundred. Mr. WILSON, the independent candidate, will run well, but between the two stools he will come to the ground. The temper of Victoria is unmistakably hostile to the government.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THEO. is going to speechify to-night, so he says. As THEO. usually quotes the TIMES freely, and consequently is a good advertising medium, we would be the last to offer any objections to his holding forth to men whom he no longer purposes to misrepresent; but, bearing in mind his verbosity, we would suggest that he be choked off so as to give the already defeated Government candidates a chance to be heard. It is shameful that these unfortunates should not be given an opportunity to vindicate themselves.

The Colonist, it will be remarked, has overlooked the letter from Mr. THOS. KEITH, M. P. P. for Nanaimo, published in yesterday's TIMES. The organ, a few days ago, on the authority of the Free Press, claimed Mr. KEITH as a Government supporter. Mr. KEITH now denies that he is a supporter of the Government, but the Government organ, agreeable to its policy of suppressing the truth when it hurts its masters, declines to publish Mr. KEITH's manly explanation.

It is a significant as well as a somewhat startling truth that the Government have no show in the cities. Where the collection of voters is large the Government is powerless to debauch a majority of individuals with the bribes of the public treasury. The electors of the cities are moreover in a position to keep themselves well posted on all matters relating to the Government of the country and to consider and vote with intelligence on the questions which are reviewed in the heat of political warfare. It is in the little attenuated boroughs, where as a result of isolation, political education is at a very low level, where corrupt practices can be carried out most successful that the Government is supreme, fattening as it were on the dead carcasses of political integrity and purity.

When the Colonist says there is but one kind of single tax and that is HENRY GEORGE'S, it either does so ignorantly or deliberately perverts the truth. Since "Progress and Poverty," came out a new school of fiscal reformers have sprung up, having for their essential principle a tax on land, or single tax as it is called, individual proprietorship of land to be retained. The chief exponent of this school of tax reform is a noted Brooklyn lawyer, whose name we cannot now recall, but who lectured on the subject in Portland, Ogn., last year, and doubtless there are numbers in this city who have a distinct recollection of it. This school of single taxists is daily growing, and the queer part of it is that it is the only answer or substitute for "Progress and Poverty" which has yet appeared. That the system of single tax proposed by the Brooklyn lawyer will be in vogue in another quarter of a century there can be no doubt. That the Colonist is not acquainted with any other kind of single tax but HENRY GEORGE'S argues woful ignorance or a deliberate misrepresentation of facts.

Montreal Star: Hon. EDWARD BLAKE is too powerful a personality to remain long in a subordinate position in his party, but being a man of temper and moods he lacks certain qualities necessary in a successful party leader. The talk of his resuming the leadership of the Liberal hosts may, however, be well founded. It is well known that Mr. LAURIER would gladly make way for him, the situation being almost parallel with that in England when Mr. GLADSTONE resigned the reins to the Marquis of HARTINGTON, but had to resume them when the critical moment came. Should Mr. Mowat be sustained in Ontario and Mr. MERCIER in Quebec, a reconsolidation of the Liberal party under Mr. BLAKE is almost certain to follow, with a general advance all along the line for tariff reform in the subsequent Dominion elections. Free trade with incidental protection—the policy laid down some time ago by Sir Alexander Galt—is really the policy of the Opposition, and on the strength of it the Liberals will make their appeal especially to the farmers.

THEO., alias Attorney General DAVIE, takes it for granted that he will be elected in Cowichan. On June 5th, he issued the following card to the electors:

Dear Sir,—Having to take a LEADING PART in the contest going on in Victoria, my opportunity for traveling through the District of Cowichan and calling upon the settlers IS VERY LIMITED.

I hope, AFTER the election, by visiting every portion of the district, to meet every settler, so as to thoroughly acquaint myself with the wants of the place. Meanwhile my colleague Mr. Croft is trying to see as many as he can.

Who but THEO. (we use the name reverently and because it has a musical sound) would think of saying that the self-elected member for Cowichan had to take "a leading part in the contest of Victoria?" His promises to visit [illegible] which can only be interpreted as meaning that he is certain of election. And, then, why should THEO. take "a leading part" in the Victoria contest? Are his "eminent services" required? Do the Government fear defeat, that this Reform hope should be mustered to their assistance? About the only sensible thing that THEO. ever did was to run away from Victoria, where he knew he could not be elected, and find a safe haven in Cowichan, where he is so sure of the result that already he can count the chickens before they are incubated.

THE CONDUCTOR'S WAY.

He Tells How the Passengers Themselves Help Him to Do His Work.

"Well, come into the baggage car, Johnny," said the old conductor. "If I am to break you in, I might as well tell you the secrets of the conductor's business. They are few and simple, but they are powerful. A conductor relies on nothing in himself or his authority. His uniform and lantern and punch don't amount to anything. He is able to do business simply because of the consciences of the people in the cars. Take away conscience from the human race, and we could not handle more than one car load. There would have to be a conductor for each car.

"Of course, you have to stir the people's conscience. You will notice that as I walk through a car I throw my hand to one side and the other, towards every passenger in the seats. Now, if a man or woman has a ticket for me, that simple motion forces that passenger to give the ticket up. They may mean to keep it, may have planned not to give it up, but as I turn my hand towards them and say, 'Tickets on at Newark, please,' they can no more help giving up the ticket than they can fly. So many things enter into that as to make it hard for me to tell you half of them. First, they know I have a right to the ticket and they have not; they are not positive whether I know they owe me a ticket or not, or whether I saw them get on or saw them sit down or not. They always presume I know all about it.

"A conductor is often surprised by having a ticket thrust at him when he does not expect it, but here's a curious fact: A conductor's surprise does not count in the business. When a conductor shows he did not expect a ticket, it is too late for the passenger to withdraw it. But a passenger's emotions are of the utmost importance to a conductor. In twenty years' experience I have detected the guilty consciences of passengers thousands of times. A man hands me a ticket that has been punched or a pass that is out of date or that is open to a doubt as to its validity, and—now, mark me, that man will betray the fact that he has no belief in his own act. Some tremor of speech, a movement of the eye, will certainly give him away. Upon that you must count for success. Watch your man, but not too closely. He will certainly make you aware of his uneasiness. Only the other day four men handed me tickets to points just outside New York. Every one of them meant to save money by riding all the way to the city. I could not pretend to remember which one gave me a ticket to Elizabeth, or which to Rahway or which to the other places. So when I got to Elizabeth I simply stood before the four men and said: 'Fare on from Elizabeth,' and got my money. In that way I made all four pay up, though I did so solely by their help.

"Just walk along behind me for a couple of days. You will at first be surprised at the number of men that you will see are trying to beat me, but you will be more astonished at the various ways in which they are certain to betray themselves."—P. R. R. in Chatter.

Disregarded Bullet Wounds.

It has occurred to no obituary writer to notice Lord Napier of Magdala's utter indifference to wounds and the wonderful celerity of his recovery from them. Two of his wounds he had not cared to notice at all in his record of services furnished to Hart's army list. He was severely wounded at Ferozeshah in December, 1845, but had recovered in time to take part in the battle of Sobraon, seven weeks later. Before Multan, in the middle of September, 1848, a cannon shot all but took off his leg, but he was marching and fighting again by the second week in November.

On the 12th of January following he was severely wounded in the trenches, but he was able to march several hundred miles across the country and fight at Gujerat one month later to a day. He was shot in the leg at the first relief of Lucknow, but nevertheless rode out next day and brought in the rear guard, after which throughout the blockade he did continuous and arduous service. At the second relief he was severely wounded, but this did not [illegible] him from taking up the active duty of chief engineer at the Alumbagh a few days later.—London World.

The Sultan's Cooks.

When Turkey, and notably the sultan, were in the last extremity of poverty, I was one day sitting in the private office of a great Galata banker. In the midst of our talk an excited cavass rushed into the room exclaiming that the sultan's gifts had arrived, and that thirty cooks were waiting without with trays of sweetmeats. While the man spoke the first cook entered the room, bearing on his head a covered tray heaped with the usual festoons of yellow gauze. I looked toward my host in mute inquiry. The banker smiled gently and said: "My friend, you must not be surprised, for we are in Turkey; but you must go, for this is a private matter. I cannot permit you to taste his majesty's bonbons, but you may judge of their quality," and with this he half raised the wooden cover of the tray and I caught a glimpse of a confused mass of flashing gems. "I hope," he continued, as he led me to the door, "to lend his majesty a quarter of a million sur ces bagatelles?"—Cor. St. James Gazette.

Wearing Crape.

Somebody says that the custom [illegible] of the servants is another instance of the adoption of everything English. Now, this is absolutely untrue. The mourning band on the arm had been in use in the southern states long before George Washington was ever heard of, and down in Dixie the gentlemen of a family also wear the crape badge for three months, six months, or twelve months, according to the length of time deep mourning is worn by the ladies of the household.—New [illegible]

OPPOSITION TO MISGOVERNMENT

The Words of Daniel Webster Appropriate at the Present Time.

All the evils which afflict the country are imputed to opposition. It is said to be owing to opposition that the war became necessary, and owing to opposition, also, that it has been prosecuted with no better success. This, sir, is no new strain. It has been sung a thousand times. It is the constant tune of every weak and wicked administration. What minister ever yet acknowledged that the evils which fell on his country were the necessary consequences of his own incapacity, his own folly, or his own corruption? What possessor of political power ever yet failed to charge the mischiefs resulting from his own measures upon those who had uniformly opposed those measures? The people of the United States may well remember the administration of Lord North. He lost America to his country, yet he could find pretences for throwing the odium upon his opponents. He could throw it upon those who had forewarned him of consequences, and who had opposed him, at every stage of his disastrous policy, with all the force of truth, reason and talent. It was not his own weakness, his own ambition, his own love of arbitrary power, that disaffected the Colonies. It was not the Tea Act, the Stamp Act, the Boston Port Bill, that severed the Empire of Britain. Oh, no! It was owing to no fault of Administration. It was the work of Opposition. It was the impertinent boldness of Chatham, the idle declamation of Fox, the unseasonable sarcasm of Barre. These men, and men like them, would not join the minister in his American war. They would not give the name and character of wisdom to what they believed to be the extreme of folly. They would not pronounce those measures just and honorable which their principles led them to condemn. They declared the minister's war to be wanton. They foresaw its end, and pointed it out plainly, both to the minister and to the country. He declared their opposition to be selfish and factious. He persisted in his course; and the result is in history.

Important as I deem it, Sir, to discuss, on all proper occasions, the policy of the measures at present pursued, it is still more important to maintain the right of such discussion in its full and just extent. Sentiments lately sprung up, and now growing popular, render it necessary to be explicit on this point. It is the ancient and constitutional right of this people to canvass public measures and the merits of public men. It is a home-bred right, a fireside privilege. It has ever been enjoyed in every house, cottage, and cabin in the nation. It is not to be drawn into controversy. It is as undoubted as the right of breathing the air and walking on the earth. Belonging to private life as a right, it belongs to public life as a duty, and it is the last duty which those whose representative I am shall find me to abandon. This high constitutional privilege I shall defend and exercise within this House, and in all places; in time of war, in time of peace, and at all times. Living, I will assert it; dying, I will assert it; and, should I leave no other legacy to my children, by the blessing of God I will leave them the inheritance of free principles, and the example of a manly, independent, and constitutional defence of them!—Daniel Webster.

AN EXPLANATION.

To the Editor:—On Saturday evening at about 7 o'clock I started for Prevost Island. When I got between Seven Mile Point and Trial Island I broke down, so I had to go into a bay to fix the steamer. Having completed the repairs I returned to Victoria at about three o'clock Sunday morning. The man, Mr. McFaddan, is still on Prevost Island, waiting for the North Star, which was to have been there either on Saturday or Sunday. Mr. McFaddan went up on the Lottie to Prevost Island on or about the 5th instant. A. Keppie.

MR. HEISTERMAN MAKES A CORRECTION.

To the Editor, Sir,—Will you please put a correction in your report of the proceedings of the school trustees' meeting on Monday evening last? Your reporter makes me say that I was opposed to any reporters being present at the committee's investigation tonight, whereas I said just the opposite. I said "No more Star Chamber." And I do think it would be very unfair both to Miss Cameron and Mrs. Winsby to exclude the press from being present at that inquiry. As to Mr. Hayward's observation in regard to my changing my opinion in regard to Mr. Halliday, I beg to say that the conversation to which Mr. Hayward refers took place at lunch time, and that Mr. Hayward and Mr. Wolfenden both laid great stress upon Mr. Halliday's "lost letter," making out that thereby Mr. H. had made himself impossible as head teacher. I agreed there that if Mr. H. were given the chance to resign, I would consent to it. In the afternoon I met Mr. Halliday on Government street, and what I there heard from him led me to change my vote, as I do not think it right to condemn any man unheard. As to the stability of myself and the chairman on the water or anywhere else, it has never been tested, but I think nobody in this city can accuse me of having broken my given word, whereas it is notorious that "Slippery Charley" cannot be relied upon, as all old residents know. Respectfully yours,

H. F. Heisterman.

11th June, 1890.

A LONGSHOREMAN REPLIES.

To the Editor:—In answer to an article which recently appeared in your paper on nuisances prevailing in Stromeyer's cabins, I consider it my duty, as one of the body known as longshoremen, to expose the malicious character, the ignorance and immorality of the man in question. I wish to impress on the public that a thorough investigation into this subject will reveal the fact that we are not as bad as we are painted. At the whistle of every boat that approaches the Victoria wharf, inward or the outer wharf, we are waiting patiently for many hours in succession to discharge her cargo. Any gentleman familiar with this port knows perfectly well we work with all the energy that lies in our power until that cargo is discharged. Though we hang round Dobson's corner, do not look upon us as the scum of creation. We longshoremen are working often when our aristocratic neighbors are partaking of their gentle repose. As regards your remarks on Indian prostitution, I would ask you not to connect it with that body of men known as longshoremen. Those cabins are rented to all classes of individuals who are in a position to pay the rental. Once in a while, if they mistake the longshoremen's cabin for their own, we do not display the least anger. My hand is stiff from hard work. I cannot write as well as I used to, but there is a little pluck left in

A Longshoreman.

SANITARY SUGGESTION.

To the Editor:—In view of the fact that during last summer we had an alarming number of sudden deaths in this city, will you allow me to suggest to the city authorities the necessity of immediately providing for the inspection and rigorous enforcement of proper sanitary regulations in all slaughterhouses, milk dairies, bakehouses, and cooking departments of hotels and restaurants. The dirty condition of some of these places is not to be outdone by anything in Chinatown. It is necessary and important to the public health, and steps should be taken to compel all who cater for the public to observe proper habits of cleanliness. I am, Sir, John Morgan, Pandora St.

A Warning.

Mr. Editor,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. City Hall, Victoria, June 2, 1890. CHARLES KENT, Collector.

The Daily Times.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

EXPLANATIONS WANTED.

The Serious Charges Made by Captain Irving Against Hon. Mr. Turner.

On the second day of October, 1889, Captain John Irving wrote to the Times as follows concerning the Lakme fair:

"Allowing the apparent excuses made by your contemporary on the Hon. Mr. Turner's behalf to be well founded, there exists no reason whatever why he should be permitted to break the law (as it is admitted he has done) to the serious detriment of our shipping interests and in direct violation of the regulations framed by the Dominion Government for their protection."

Again, on the 4th day of October, Captain Irving wrote as follows on the same subject:

"By Mr. Turner's action in this matter he not only does what he can to cripple our shipping interests, but he takes work from the laborers of Victoria!!!"

These serious charges made by one gentleman running on the Government ticket against another gentleman on the same ticket requires some explanation. We think some explanation is due to the public.

THE LUMBER TRADE.

The Increasing Demand in this City—New Mills Being Erected.

The large amount of lumber being used in Victoria at present is certainly a good sign of the building that is going on in all directions. A few years ago, Sayward's mill, which had a capacity of about half the amount that it has now, was able to supply the demand for building and the sash and door factories as well. Now, with the Queen City and Sayward's mill both running night and day, and a large amount from Chemainus, contractors find it necessary to order lumber a long time ahead, and a number have found it necessary to get it by the scow load from the mills on the Mainland. Messrs. Lee & Sons, well known lumber men from Ontario, have decided to build a large mill on the Victoria Arm, and no doubt will reap a rich harvest for their enterprise, as will also Messrs. Lowe & Co., who are at present putting machinery into their new mill at Shawnigan Lake. When these mills are erected and the Chemainus mill is rebuilt no doubt the Island will be able to supply the ever increasing demand in this city.

THE GARBAGE QUESTION.

No Place to Put the City's Refuse—Crematory Advised.

For some time past Mr. J. Doherty, city scavenger, has been dumping the refuse and garbage collected by him on his own land at Cedar Hill, there being no other place provided for it. He has now been served with a notice by the provincial police, warning him not to dump any more garbage there, and in consequence none has been removed from the city for the past few days, and the malodorous heaps in back yards are growing steadily.

It is certainly time that some method of dealing with the garbage of the city was advised, and the matter should be attended to at once. Mr. Doherty will ~~no doubt ask the board of aldermen to~~ furnish him with a dumping ground, but it does not seem likely that they will, for they have none. The rapidly growing suburbs are prohibitive against the stuff being deposited within several miles of the city proper. If it is dumped on the sea beach an injunction is at once procured, and at present there is no place for it. Something will have to be done, and it would perhaps be a good idea to consider the question of a crematory as advocated by Mr. Thos. Sorby. Burning the rubbish and refuse is probably the best way to dispose of it, and the scheme should be considered on its merits.

WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

The Steamer Mystery Goes on Her Trial Trip.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the steamer Mystery, built by W. J. Stevens and the Albion Iron Works for Messrs. Spencer & Earle's cannery at Alert Bay, left Spratt's wharf on her trial trip. As she steamed out of the harbor she was the cause of a good deal of attention by marine men who have been watching her construction for some time and they one and all expressed admiration at the way in which she acted. A run was made around Race Rocks and from there to the mile poles recently erected at Beacon Hill where her speed was tried and was found to be a knot in 5 minutes and 24 seconds. On an average she can make about 11 knots. The engines, which are compound of high and low pressure, worked like a charm under the guidance of Mr. Kessler, foreman of the Albion Iron Works. The cabin and inside fittings are nicely finished and are a picture of comfort. When she is completed she will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

Among those who took part in the trip in addition to Mr. Earle, M. P., and Mr. Spencer, the owners, were Messrs. Rodd, Ward, R. P. Rithet, Captain Irving, L. McQuade, Walter Chambers, Dixie Ross, James Mann, H. Noble, W. Walker, T. E. Woods, B. Madigan, John Robertson, W. Stevens, H. Kessler, Robert Marsaugh, Captain Reynan and the machinists and carpenters who have been at work on her. [illegible] a very happy crew of gentlemen aboard.

Capt. Reynan will command the Mystery, and engineer Jas. Montgomery, formerly of the Rithet, will take charge of the engine room.

Walla Walla Passengers.

The Victoria passengers on the Walla Walla are: J. C. McClure, Mrs. D. White, F. Jeffers, Grace D. Worn, H. Delmer and wife, Miss McIntyre, J. M. Wright, N. W. Wright and wife.

Gold at Seattle.

While some workmen were excavating on the corner of Pike and Heussy streets, Seattle, the other day, they discovered gold in quite free quantities. No excitement was caused, as the value of real estate in Seattle precludes all possibility of gold mining on the land.

Vancouver Fish Company.

A fishing company has been organized at Vancouver with a capital stock of $50,000. The company is composed of leading business men and capitalists from Toronto and Montreal, and practical fishermen from the east have been engaged. Deep sea fishing will be pursued, and the catches put on the market fresh and salt.

Death's Hand.

Mrs. Mary Ann Bell died at the residence of her husband, 84 Dallas Road, last evening. She was 64 years of age and a native of Yorkshire, Eng. The funeral will take place to-morrow.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Emma L. Jenkins died at St. Joseph's Hospital in her 32nd year. The deceased leaves a husband and seven small children to mourn her death.

Twould Take Too Long.

Last evening Mr. West said he would very much like to have the Colonist man hire the Victoria Theatre, and lecture on what he did not know about the Single Tax question. Mr. West is probably not aware that the theatre building is not on lease for a term of years. One or two nights would be of no possible use to the Colonist man in making his explanation of what he don't know.

Youthful Thieves.

For some time past the storekeepers of New Westminster have been annoyed by the petty burglaries of a gang of Vancouver youths who have been stealing at different times. The Westminster Chief of Police has at last captured three of the gang named Arthur Davie, William Davie and Ed. Chapman, ranging in ages from 11 to 13 years. Some of these boys were arrested in Vancouver over a year ago for complicity in the burglary of a cigar store, and are known as a hard lot.

Pygmalion and Galatea.

The performance of Pymallion and Galatea given in the Victoria Theatre on Monday evening was one of the most successful of the amateur entertainments, which have been given in the city, and a goodly sum will as a consequence be turned over to the Orphans of St. Anne. The merits of the performance itself on Monday evening was quite in keeping with the high standard of excellance which the company established themselves in their first appearance. Mr. Adderly and Miss Brady in the principal roles acted their parts well nigh to perfection while their support seemed to have improved themselves in their parts.

Westminster Schools.

The annual report of the New Westminster school trustees shows that 600 children are enrolled in the schools there. At the meeting Rev. M. Jamieson called attention to the fact that a disparity of about ten per cent. existed between the salaries paid teachers in this city and Victoria, and introduced a resolution referring to the same, and and calling the attention of the Education Department to it; also recommending that female teachers be paid the same salaries for the same work as teachers. Nothing was said about the Victoria principals of divisions having three times the responsibility.

Brotherhood of Trainmen.

A Brotherhood of Trainmen was organized at Donald on Tuesday last, 27th May, by Bro. Slatterly, grand chief organizer for the Brotherhood. The following list of officers were elected: W.M., J. Babbitt; V.W.M., W. Caldwell; Past M., W. Elson; secretary, W. Ogilvie; financier, A. McLean; magazine agent, A. Chesley; warden, F. Chesley; conductor, W. Lee; chaplain, A. Armstrong; inside guard, A. Elliott; outside guard, T. Horn. After the organization a hearty vote of thanks was given to Messrs. Marpole and Downey for allowing them to come together and giving them facilities for doing so. The boys all paid a visit to Mr. Van Antwerp, who was in the hospital from the injuries he received at the time of the accident at Mountain Creek, and he was found to be doing very well.—Truth.

Cedar Hill.

A correspondent sends us the following items: A very noisy political meeting was held in the school-house on Tuesday evening. Messrs. Carey, Anderson and Eberts were the speakers. Mr. Carey spoke at great length, the audience listening with wonderful patience. Mr. Anderson followed in a short speech, and then Mr. Eberts took the floor and replied to Mr. Carey. The meeting broke up at 12:30 a. m.

The teacher justly complains of the filth left on the floor by tobacco soakers and the opinion is generally expressed that the schoolroom is no place for such a meeting if such is to be the result.

Farmers in the locality report the crop prospects good. The hay crop promises to be excellent.

It is rumored that one of our most respected farmers and a most useful man in the community for many years, has to leave his place in consequence of his landlord having taken advantage of the present high prices to sell the farm. The people in the neighborhood regret this very much, and are somewhat indignant since the farmer will very likely be a heavy loser in consequence of receiving a very short notice of the sale, although he was given to understand recently that he should have the farm during his life.

The New Route.

A new route has been opened to the dwellers of California who have the inclination and the needful to make excursions across the continent. The Canadian Pacific Railway is inaugurating a series of excursions from San Francisco and other Californian points to the east, which promise to become very popular. The first two are now en route, one section having arrived at Winnipeg, and the other, which took in a day at Banff, being on the way.

To-Night's Meetings.

There is a plethora of meetings in the city to-night. The board of school trustees will continue their session devoted to the enquiry concerning the charges of cruelty to school children by the teachers. The board of aldermen hold their regular weekly meeting; the Government candidates will orate at the Victoria Theatre, and in Victoria West the triangular duel between Messrs. Helgesen, Pooley and Higgins will be continued. Plenty of attractions, surely.

Mind Reader King.

On Thursday evening Mr. Carl B. King, the great mind reader, will astonish and amaze Victorians at the theatre. Mr. King has a wonderful reputation, he being said to excel the late Washington Irving Bishop. He undergoes the severest tests, and proves conclusively that his feats are really mind reading, and not trickery of any kind. Mr. A. G. Salmon, one of the most talented of America's pianists, accompanies Mr. King, and will give piano recitals during the evening.

During the past year there has been an increase of over 240 pupils in the public schools of Westminster, there being now 600 children attending the schools. Of these 420 are attending the Central school, 55 at the East End school, while 65 were in attendance at the West End school.

IS MR. TURNER DISFRANCHISED?

TO THE EDITOR.—At the theatre last night Mr. Theo. Davie stated that the reason Mr. Arthur Dutton's name was not put on the voters list in time to give him a vote at the elections on Friday next, was because his address was not on his application. I notice that among many others there is no address attached to the name of the Hon. J. H. Turner. Is he like Mr. Dutton disfranchised? COMMON SENSE.

MR. MUIR TO MR. TURNER.

TO THE EDITOR:—Will you kindly publish the following questions for Mr. Turner to answer to-night?

1. Why did he, as a member of the Government, take away a man's character and means of earning a living illegally and without trial by his court, from which there it no appeal except to the people?

2. Why did he, as a member of the Government, prevent an orphan girl of Victoria from earning a living, and grant it to a foreigner last year?

3. Why did the Government doctor a telegram as evidence?

4. Why did the Government send a letter containing false statements to the Westminster Council, June 20th, 1889?

5. Why did they suppress official correspondence and publish private and confidential correspondence?

6. Why did they produce such voluntered filthy evidence, to ruin a man's reputation, that the Queen's printer put a row of stars in place of it?

7. Why did they suppress the statement under oath of one person and publish those of others?

8. Why did they close down the school at Lulu Island at once when the average fell below ten for part of a month, and allow a school to remain open at Cowichan with the average below ten for a whole year?

9. Why did they write to a teacher a false reason for cancelling his certificate and thereby induce the teacher to withdraw his law-suit and when that was done then produce another reason, being the very reason for which the teacher had commenced his law-suit.

Surely Mr. Turner does not expect the free and independent electors to support a government which is responsible for those misdeeds, and give him a vote merely because he is personally esteemed. Is not a man known by the company he keeps? J. N. MUIR.

The steamer Rainbow will leave for the logging camps this evening.

The steamer Walla Walla was to have sailed at 9 o'clock Monday morning for Victoria and ports on Puget Sound. Shortly before her sailing time her main steam pipe burst, causing a delay. Repairs were effected and at 3 o'clock p. m. she left for her destination.

The ship Guardian has arrived at Port Townsend under command of Capt. Gatter, from San Francisco, with a cargo of supplies for the Hadlock mill. Capt. Gatter had his shoulder dislocated on the trip by being caught in the wheel and thrown violently to the deck.

At present there are eight vessels in Nanaimo harbor and at Departure Bay loading and sailing for various ports. There is the largest number of vessels that has been in the harbor for the new V. C. Co.'s coal for the last eighteen months, and still there are more vessels en route. It is rumored that No. 3, Chase River, will shortly open up again to meet the present rushing demand.

Arrived.

Curling tongs and lamps, ladies penknives, scissors, etc. and a full line of shaving materials at M. & H. A. Fox's, 78 Government street. *

Enemy in Disguise.

It turns out, according to a correspondent in the Free Press that Mr. Forster, one of the candidates in Nanaimo district, is not a miner, but a Fraser river rancher. It is claimed by the correspondent that his nomination is the plot of a clique to elect an enemy in that district.

A Bad Vag.

In the police court, James O'Brien was called to answer to a charge of vagrancy, but James was non est. His reputation not being of the best, the head of the police department took measures to have a permit made out for the absent one's admittance to the Provincial jail should he return to the city which he has left for the city's good.

Rather Slipshod.

At last night's meeting Hon. Theo. Davie admitted on the platform that when the street residence of an applicant to be placed on the voter's list could not be found, that one of the clerks put down "Johnson street," by chance, just to fill up. This would indicate that affairs in the attorney-general's office are not conducted in a very orderly or systematic manner.

An Assault Case.

In to-morrow's police court an assault case will be heard, where a man is charged with twice striking and knocking down a lady. The trouble appears to have arisen over the fact that the lady's young son turned a horse loose which belonged to the man, who thereupon assaulted the lad. The mother remonstrated with the assaulter, and was in turn assailed by the warlike party.

Custom Made Pants.

Men's all tweed or corduroy pants made to order for three dollars. Men's superfine tweed pants made from the best goods procurable, four dollars per pair. Cut and workmanship guaranteed. No money will be taken for the goods unless the customer is thoroughly satisfied with the cut and workmanship. White labor only is employed. Russell, McDonald & Co., opposite the Iron Church, Douglas street. *

A Low Estimate.

The award by the arbitrators on the loss by Mr. Geo. Morrison, whose drug store was wrecked on the night of the late fire, seems ridiculously small, it being only $380. Mr. Morrison's loss will be much greater than that amount without considering loss of time and trade. He is very well satisfied with the action of the insurance people, but thinks that the arbitrators made an exceedingly small estimate of the loss sustained.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Chas. Jenkins took place to-day from Storey's undertaking rooms, Government street. Many friends followed the remains to the grave, and the coffin was covered with floral offerings. Messrs. Jordon, Salmon, Taylor, McKay, Sullivan and Beddis acted as pallbearers. The circumstances of Mrs. Jenkins' death are very sad, she leaving eight children and a husband to mourn her loss. The youngest child is an infant of only three weeks old.

Trustee Election.

It is said that the provisions of the act entitling ladies to be candidates for seats at the school board will be taken advantage of at the forthcoming elections for school trustees. Mesdames Higgins, Williams and Adams have been asked to contest the vacant seats in Johnson street and Yates street wards, but have declined. It is understood that Mr. Thomas McConnan, stationer, Fort street, is out as a candidate in James Bay ward. Mr. Walter Walker it it is said will offer in Yates street ward. What the platforms of the opposing parties will be has not been made known, but it will probably be "Rawhide" and "Anti Rawhide."

Ready for Business.

Flooding out a store of any kind with water is bad for the contents, but more especially so when these contents are of a kind easily damaged, such as the goods kept by Mr. Short, of 32 Fort street, whose gun and sporting goods store was so badly wrecked at Sunday night's fire. In spite of this, however, hard work has wrought order out of chaos, and a good portion of the stock which was injured has been replaced. Some of it, which has been slightly damaged, will be offered for sale at greatly reduced rates. To use Mr. Short's own words, a knock-down is not a battle, and he don't propose to be discouraged.

Special Card.

As the public have so generously contributed to the success of my great reduction sale, I am induced to continue it for one month longer on the same terms. Here are the most liberal prices ever offered in British Columbia or elsewhere: $10 pants for $7, $12 pants for $8, $14 pants for $10, $16 pants for $12, $20 suits for $15, $25 suits for $20, $40 suits for $25. All work guaranteed a perfect fit or no sale. J. McCallum, "The famous Californian Tailor," 42 Fort street, Victoria, B. C. Prompt and careful attention to letter orders. Samples mailed. my29-1m

D. W. Black, storekeeper of the C. P. R., Vancouver, is, with his wife, at the Driard. They are on their wedding trip.

The School Squabble.

The Toronto Mail says: In Victoria (B. C.) Rev. P. McF. Macleod has created a stir by denouncing the resort to corporal punishment in the schools. The occasion for the denunciation was the whipping of a boy upon the hand for wilful disobedience. In explanation of the whipping the teacher, a lady, explains that the lad positively refused to attend to his lessons though frequently urged to do so, and that his example was demoralizing to the class in which he sat. She adds:—"The Rev. P. McF. Macleod and others speak very decidedly on this matter of corporal punishment in schools. I would remind him and them that facts, like children, are stubborn things, and that we must treat with poor human nature as we find it, and not as we wish it to be." It really would be pleasant if moral suasion were effectual with young fellows. But, as a matter of fact, it does not work in all cases. It is particularly powerless, when, as is too often the case, the parent sides with the offender and antagonizes the teacher.

CONSUMPTION OF GAS.

The Gas Company's Alterations—A Good Sign of Victoria's Prosperity.

M. Humber has received the contract for building the brickwork for the new gasometer for the Victoria Gas Company. The new gasometer is of a very large size, having a capacity of 110,000 feet per night and is capable of being increased to 230,000 feet if required.

Mr. C. W. R. Thomson, secretary of the company, in speaking to a reporter this afternoon, said that the consumption of gas in Victoria during last winter was on an average 124,000 feet per night, and he was confident that it would take 180,000 feet to supply the demand next winter, and for this reason the company had made the addition, which along with the old plant would be more than able to cope with the increased demand. In regard to the gas stoves recently introduced, he said that a large number were already in use and that when the people saw the conveniences arising from them during the summer they would soon be a regular piece of furniture in every house. The company's object in introducing the stoves was mainly to equalize the consumption, as if something was not done half their plant laid idle during the summer. The company have made frequent reductions in their rates and Mr. Thomson said that they were ready to make still further reduction as the population and consumption increased.
